

Turning insight into action

Private, for you alone. Begin with the minimum. Add the rest only if your present capacity allows. If any card proves more consequential than it first seemed, take it back to the Lesson 12 testing worksheet before acting.

The minimum, over two weeks

One Act step:

Done on (day):

One Share conversation, with:

One Seek-counsel appointment or access step:

Rhythm practised, imperfectly, on (days):

Jethro questions answered: ☐ yes ☐ not yet

If capacity allows

A second Act step:

A second Share conversation, with:

One structural change requested from:

Result:

Lesson 12 review date, if testing:

That is the maximum this fortnight asks. If your present capacity allows less, choose the actions that most protect your health, safety, and faithfulness. The rhythm is an ongoing practice, not another task.

Three sentences for a Share conversation

Kind of sharing: ☐ being heard ☐ support ☐ dividing a task ☐ asking a leader to redistribute

1. This is the burden:

2. This is how I have been carrying it alone:

3. This is the specific help I am asking for:

Five questions

Where the workload can change. Some exhaustion comes from illness, bereavement, or circumstances that cannot be reorganised; that is not a failure to delegate.

1. What am I doing that only I can do? Be strict. The list is usually shorter than it feels.

2. What am I doing that someone else could do, if they were asked and trusted?

3. What am I doing that does not need to be done at all, by anyone?

4. What am I doing because I am afraid of what will happen if I stop?

5. What would this role look like if it were designed for a human being with legitimate limits, rather than depending on one person continually exceeding them?

The person I will take them to, and the one structural change I will request:

If the answer is no: ask why, and whether another form of relief is possible. A clear refusal may belong on a "To test" card for Lesson 12.

Before any apology or contact. Do not contact someone to apologise if contact would be unsafe, unwanted or legally restricted, or likely to burden them further; seek qualified guidance first. Centre the harm done to the other person, not your own relief. An apology does not oblige anyone to forgive, reply, resume contact, or restore trust.
Urgent safety or medical concerns: do not wait for an ordinary appointment. If you are in immediate danger, call your local emergency number.
